Eclipse of Sun Is To Occur Wednesday

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—There will be a ring-eclipse of the sun Wednesday that will reach its center, or maximum, at about 12 noon (EST). For the continental United States this eclipse will be no sky show, even though persons in California, looking through smoked glasses, will be able to see almost 40 per cent of the sun's face covered.

The area of the sun shadowed by the moon drops rapidly eastward across the United States, until at Washington it is four hundredths of one per cent. The northeastern United States will not see it at all.

500 Attend Forum Here on Communism

A crowd estimated at 500 attended the forum on communism at St. Joseph's school hall Sunday night.

Discussion was led by James P. Evers and Maurice A. Walsh, members of a New York city law firm. Francis S. Eddy, another member of the firm scheduled to talk, was unable to attend because of illness in his family.

The speakers touched mainly on the point that the Communists are making no secret of their aims in world conquest. They urged that Americans be less indolent in the face of efforts to spread communism in the nation.

The session opened with a foreword by the Rev. John D. Simmons, spiritual director of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society. The participating audience was welcomed by Msgr. Stephen P. Condon, pastor of St. Joseph's Church. Choirists of the church provided a musical interlude.

Evening Verse—(For Your Scrapbook) By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

IN YOUR OPINION....

Which are the best years . . . the early or late?
Or those in your twenties, dusted with fate?
When is our laughter most hearty and gay?
Early in childhood, or when would you say?
Children know little of worry and care . . .
Pressure to them is a daily affair.
Still they're unable to measure delight
Seeing so much that is lovely and bright.

In your opinion . . . are youngsters in 'teens
Looking at life's most desirable scenes?
Seniors, too, find problems and heartaches may come
Falling to grasp what is easy for some.
How about hair that's beginning to gray?
Is it a phase you prefer to delay?
Maybe you smile as you journey alone
Humming the tune of life's beautiful song.

Which are the best years? I really don't know
Springtime is lovely . . . yet Christmas has snow
Each stage has its sorrow and portion of zest
But in your opinion . . . which one is the best?

Borneo Missionary Opens Preaching at Baptist Church

The Rev. George Fisk Tells of Experiences in Country of Savages

Challenging Christians of all denominations to unite in evangelism in a tireless effort to bring their fellowmen to God and the church, the Rev. George Fisk, returned missionary from Borneo, opened the union preaching mission Sunday evening at the First Baptist Church before a capacity turnout.

The mission, sponsored by the Hudson Valley Evangelical Fellowship, will continue nightly until November 23, featuring talks by the Rev. Dr. Henry Mangum, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hastings, Fla., and vice-president of Webster-Trinity University. Dr. Mangum, who is arriving in New York by plane today, will begin his talks this evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Recounting several of his harrowing experiences which occurred during his last visit to the field, the Rev. Mr. Fisk said that his ability to escape death at the hands of the natives was made possible by the grace of God.

He told of his exciting trip by dugout for six weeks while covering about 300 miles through the wildest territory of the jungle. He also spoke of his sleeping in a native Dyak village where every family of the natives had large hoops of heads drying over a slow fire as a religious rite.

Mission Fulfilled
Continual preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ, he stated, finally proved successful to these wild tribesmen and after a time they halted their practice of head-hunting and threw their huge bundles of dried heads into the river. This mission was accomplished, he claimed, even after the local government of Borneo proved futile in halting the superstitious rites.

They accepted the Christian faith, the Rev. Mr. Fisk said, and now right here in this country, people need the power of this gospel which converted the tribesman. He called upon all Christians to unite in the effort to make a better world.

Sunday's musical program featured the King's Herald Quartet composed of Miss Lois Kear, trombonist; William Ruenckle, violinist; and James Riccetti, pianist, from the Missionary Training Institute at Nyack. The sanctuary choir of the church also offered a selection.

The Rev. Edward V. Winder, pastor, presided at the mission and the musical numbers were introduced by the Rev. James Kegerize, pastor of the Christian and Missionary Church.

The evening prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Osterhout Phillips of the Congregational Church.

Prior to Sunday's service a Youth Fellowship service was held at the First Baptist Church to which 100 persons attended.

Another feature of the preaching mission is the Gospel Melody Hour for children which will be held every afternoon at 3:45 o'clock. All children are invited.

Mrs. Dale Flemming of Binghamton will be in charge.

Special music for all of the services is under the direction of the Rev. Dale Flemming, song director of the John A. Davis Memorial Bible School of Bible School Park, N. Y. He will offer special selections with the trumpet and accordion.

All services will begin promptly at 7:45 p. m.

Belgian Kindness Brings Reward of Clothing

Camden, N. J., Nov. 10 (AP)—Everett Hunterston, 30-year-old former army sergeant, made up his mind never to forget how well he and his World War Two comrades were treated by the people of Gastuche, Belgium.

That's why Hunterston didn't hesitate when a letter arrived the other day from Lucien Demortier, a resident of Gastuche, describing how hard it was going to be for many of his fellow villagers to keep warm this winter.

Hunterston, who was stationed near Gastuche with an air force unit, talked the matter over with his pastor, the Rev. Samuel S. Zelle, of the Fairview Methodist Church, and as a result the church held "Belgium Day" yesterday with 1,000 articles of clothing stacked beside the altar by parishioners.

Some of the clothing, Hunterston said, will be en route to Belgium by Thursday with the remainder following as soon as possible.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 10, 1947

INSIDE STORY

Another "inside story" is on sale at the bookstands. Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes has written "Speaking Frankly", an account of high and secret diplomacy during the war years. Thousands of readers will doubtless welcome the opportunity to read an authoritative but unofficial account of secret doings behind closed conference room doors at Yalta, Potsdam, Moscow, London, Paris and New York at the meetings of the big three powers.

Mr. Byrnes' book is in keeping with a current trend. Numerous Americans prominent in public life begin writing history on the wing as soon as they retire. Morgenthau, Farley, Ickes and Halsey are only a few examples. Their motives may be various: the enlightenment of posterity, the settlement of grudges, or the money that can be made by publishing an unofficial eyewitness account.

The puzzle is whether history written on the wing is good history. If the writer is discreet he omits from his book the facts that are still too hot to handle. If he is indiscreet he is likely to color his report with his own prejudices. It is almost impossible to be objective or complete at such close range to historic events.

First-hand accounts nevertheless have a liveliness and authenticity that almost invariably make good reading. More history is made in a week nowadays than in a decade a few centuries ago. These are exciting, fateful times, and current accounts of what is happening enliven everyone's sense of participation in the heroics and tragedy of modern life.

The Byrnes book is on all counts one of the best. It is human in its personal relation to the events narrated, but it is told with a factual clearness and detachment which make it far more valuable than most such books. It succeeds in clearing for the reader many points previously puzzling. It may not be great history, but it is certainly good reporting.

SWISS GALLATIN

A great foreign-born American was commemorated the other day when Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder unveiled a bust of Albert Gallatin at Washington. A Swiss by birth, Gallatin became secretary of the treasury under Jefferson, and held the office for 13 years. This is still the record, though at one time Henry Morgenthau, Jr., looked as if he might break it. Gallatin originated the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, which gives the first congressional consideration to all revenue measures. This was only one of his many financial devices, which placed him among the leaders of this field.

He also helped frame the Treaty of Ghent which ended the War of 1812, and served as minister to France and England. Nevertheless, when proposed for vice president in 1824, he was so strongly opposed because of his foreign birth that he withdrew. (Having come to this country before the adoption of the Constitution, he could not have been barred from office by his birth abroad.) He was interested in public affairs down to his death in 1849.

A great man in his day, Gallatin should not be forgotten now.

It is betraying no secret to say that there are too many airplane accidents.

RACCOON IN GOTHAM

Most people can sympathize with that poor baby raccoon which by some mysterious mischance found itself wandering through New York City's Central Park the other day. It was doing all right, though, until a crowd of gawking children and adults gathered and began to chase it. They screamed excitedly to each other, "What is this animal?" Honestly, not one of the hundred of them knew.

TOM DEWEY SPEAKS

It must be remembered that there is no such thing as a Marshall Plan for American aid to Europe. The most Mr. Marshall has done, thus far, has been to suggest that the Europeans draw up a plan, which they did in the form of the Bevin Report.

Thus, Tom Dewey may claim the credit of having been the first leader of either political party, including the government, to propose a comprehensive plan which undoubtedly has the support of Senator Vandenberg and John Foster Dulles. Emanating from such quarters, the Dewey Plan takes on official character as representing the Republican position. As this Congress is Republican, this first statement of one of the two chief contenders for the Presidential nomination within that party takes on primary significance.

Governor Dewey chose a curious audience for so serious a pronouncement. It was a private dinner given by B. C. Forbes in honor of the Twentieth Anniversary of the founding of his magazine. Present were most of the top business men of the country. He laid it down as axiomatic that aid to Europe and China is no longer a matter of choice; it is a matter of self-defense against a vicious enemy.

He said, "We have no choice today whether or not to act in this emergency. It is unthinkable that after a successful war at staggering cost in blood and resources, we should now stop and surrender the fruits of victory."

He did not even promise aid upon probable success to our efforts nor upon potential value received. "If," he said, "as a mere 140 million people, we found ourselves in the midst of a conquered world, from France to China, we should find more than a billion people in an armed camp under the control of an aggressive dictatorship arrayed against us. In terms of dollars, such a condition would cost us in national defense alone, a great deal more than any program of aid to Europe and it would cost us that annually for years to come. In terms of living standards, we should sink to a level not seen by any living person in this country. In terms of our liberties, I find it difficult to see how we could avoid a degree of economic control which would cut the very heart out of our system."

He then proposed a plan which would require the governments that receive our aid to use the proceeds from sales " . . . to develop the productive resources of the nations so as more speedily to make them self-supporting. They should also be used to develop new productive resources out of which might later come the means of at least partial return on our investment through acquiring important strategic materials needed in our own defense." Capital goods would be financed by straight loans under an Authority which would be under a genuine bi-partisan board, the chairman of which " . . . should be an individual of outstanding ability, equipped by training and experience to assume the enormous responsibilities involved and entitled by reputation to the full confidence of the American people."

Having proposed this, Dewey asked of Congress a clear and understandable statement of policy with regard to the assistance for freedom-loving countries. Then he did something wholly unexpected. He brought to the attention of President Truman had abandoned, back into the arena of American affairs. Because of this, Congress may demand the release of the Wedemeyer Report which General Marshall has smothered in line with the policy pursued by both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. The abandonment of Chiang Kai-Shek by the Truman Administration, after his heroic stand in a fumbling foreign policy, Dewey, having revived that issue, forces it upon his own party in Congress and upon the Administration.

The practical measures in the Dewey Plan need to be studied and fitted into the framework of our capabilities. But this much is clear: as a candidate he has assumed leadership in the foreign field, and he has stated it with a confidence and conviction on its domestic implications, and has thrown it as a challenge to President Truman. That was like a public declaration that his hat is in the ring. (Copyright 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

EMOTIONS AND WORK

The story is told of a hunter who had wounded a bear, and the bear turned and chased him. He climbed a tree and, to his surprise, the bear climbed after him. In recounting the story to a friend, he said that he didn't know that kind of a bear could climb a tree. "But you wounded the bear and made him mad, and when a bear is mad or even a human being is mad he can do seemingly impossible things."

It was formerly thought that we did these "impossible" feats because of a strong will. There is no doubt that a strong will enables us to do just a little more than we could, I can remember when, as a boy, we were told to hold the arm straight out sideways from the shoulder, and we tried to hold it until the other fellow quit. Even when we were ready to quit ourselves, we hung on, and on. But eventually one had to quit, and the other fellow then let his arm fall to his side. What about this getting mad and so being able to do the apparently impossible?

Research workers, who have been investigating the effects of emotions on all the body processes, have found that when we get mad or are placed in desperate circumstances, extra sugar is poured into the blood by the action of the adrenal glands—situated on top of each kidney. It is sugar that gives us energy in an emergency, and the muscles perform the feat—otherwise impossible.

Further, if the fear or act takes some little time the blood is likewise supplied with more oxygen, not necessarily from the lungs. All the tissues of the body give up some of their oxygen for the time being, and then afterwards Nature sees that the tissues get this oxygen paid back to them. A hard race or game in which our emotions are at their highest pitch enables us to borrow sugar and oxygen from all the tissues to be used by our muscles. Nature, however, repays all her debts.

Neurosis—believing you have a physical ailment when none exists—is becoming increasingly common. Send today for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on this subject entitled "Neurosis." To obtain it just send 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp, to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. They were afraid of the creature, too.

But the raccoon was still more terrified. It finally escaped to a tenement roof by a fire escape. Agents of the Animal Protective Association rescued him and told his pursuers what any country or camping-out boy would have known—the name of this rare quadruped.

Recently a city lad helping a friend who was building a house in the country jumped and yelled in real alarm when a small toad hopped out of hiding.

Isn't it too bad about city people—never having any advantages?

It is not yet established that there are any automobiles in heaven.

Better Than Standing Around in the Cold Forever

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

Albany, N. Y. (AP)—I dropped in to see America's best known dairy farmer today, and he was quite optimistic over the prospects for 1948.

"We're about breaking even now," he said, "and next year we expect to do better."

The farmer was Tom Dewey, and he wasn't talking about votes. He was speaking purely about his 500-acre dairy farm, a subject he is much more vocal on than the question of who will be the candidates for the Republican presidential nomination next year.

Since Dewey is also governor of New York state, his political acquaintances like to hear "Farmer Tom" about his cow farm, but he insists it is no mere hobby with him.

"My major interest is in running a dairy farm," he said. "It is located in beautiful Dutchess county, where another well-known farmer used to live. Fellow name of Roosevelt."

"Like most farmers, 'Farmer Tom' had a grievance against the government. In this case it was the New York city government.

To understand this grievance you need a little background. The biggest problem of the dairy farmer in this country isn't price—it's mastitis," Dewey said. "We've just about got tuberculosis in cows whipped, and we've got Bang's disease pretty well cleaned up in New York."

"But there is some incidence of mastitis in 95 per cent of the dairy herds."

The best way I can figure out to describe mastitis is to say that it is an infection that annoys cows in the fauces area so much they cut down production. Well, to meet the sanitation requirements for milk sold in New York city, dairy farmers have had to anchor their concrete floors in doorways having concrete floors which must be washed down daily. This is okay for the milk drinkers but hard on the cows. When they curl up for a little shut-eye, their tender fauces zone hits the damp cold concrete. Dewey and a lot of other farmers believe this makes them more susceptible to mastitis.

So they proposed a return to pen stabling, which permits the cows to bunk down on warm bedding of chopped straw, cornstalks or hay.

Farmer Dewey took the matter right to the head man—Mayor O'Dwyer of New York city in this case.

"I told him there was no reason pen stabling wouldn't satisfy sanitary regulations under a proper system of inspection," he said.

The mayor agreed to let 100 dairy farms in the metropolitan milk production area—including Dewey's—try it as a test to determine if it would reduce mastitis.

The heavy duties of running the most popular state in America forced Dewey to be a commuting farmer. Each week-end, carrying along state papers to work on at night, he sets out for his farm, which at present has 101 cows. He always tries to get there by milking time.

Certainly I milk my cows," he said. "This is my principal interest in life. That way I know my herd."

A report several weeks ago on the tooth-building propensities of fluorine indicated that at least one health-giving element can be placed where it will benefit an entire community throughout the year.

Tests made at Newburgh have proved definitely, said the experts, that the teeth of the mid-Hudson city have benefited noticeably through application of the fluorine in proper proportion to the average water supply, and that is encouraging enough for a community to adopt a similar plan.

The whole idea, meanwhile, sets one to wondering if something else couldn't be put in the waters of the world for our general welfare. Suppose, for instance that someone had an elixir, which, given in proper doses with our water would provide all future possibilities of warlike tendencies.

That is a Utopian dream, of course, but it is not exactly futile to hope that other health-giving elements may be discovered later and used like fluorine in the reservoirs of every community.

The whole idea at least stresses the role of the Catskill Mountains in any future use of fluorine or other similar elements which may be used in the interest of public health.

People from all over the world drink water from our mountains because New York city is never without it share of visitors from other nations and it will have many more in the future as the business of the United Nations increases.

This is one way in which the health of the world is benefited through the natural endowments of our own backyard and it seems that it should be making more of a fuss over the fact.

The whole area has been commendably generous in supplying the great metropolis with its water for all purposes, and the current expansion program of the city's water department calls for further heavy drainage from other mountain watersheds.

Billions of gallons of Catskill Mountain water is used annually from the Ashokan and Gilboa reservoirs and within the next few years billions of gallons more will flow from the Lackawack and Neversink reservoirs.

Let's hope New York is mindful of the possibilities of "air-age" developments in the more distant future when Ulster and other neighboring areas may become virtual suburbs of the big town. We hope there'll be enough water to go around then.

Committee Report on Aid to Europe Will Not Satisfy American Public Opinion.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 10.—The committee of 19 distinguished American citizens advising Secretary of Commerce Harriman on the program of aid to Europe made, for the most part, a splendid report but it will not satisfy American public opinion on one essential point—namely, what assurances will be insisted upon that the money will be effectively spent?

Unfortunately, the Harriman Committee practically bypasses this with the same old worn-out doctrine of "nonintervention" in foreign states that has been the bane of American realists every time they are asked to put up their dollars and their resources to help another country.

Evidently, to get unanimity, compromise language was adopted. Thus the Harriman Committee deliberately abandons any insistence on the free-enterprise system in the operation of the Marshall Plan. Whether this was done to cater to the views of Socialist governments abroad or to satisfy the so-called liberals in America, it will not satisfy the conservatives who must be reckoned with in the operation of the Marshall Plan. It is called by its critics, is not to materialize.

The principle of aid to Europe is sound but the expenditure of from $12 to $17 billions from the U.S. treasury calls for a little more care than the Harriman Committee was apparently willing to give to the method of spending such an enormous sum.

While the committee calls for the creation by Congress of the fund to European governments and for production goals and for piecemeal aid so a check can be maintained concurrently on what will be done with the money, the fact remains that the goods and funds will be handed over to some governments in which the vast body of American business men have not the slightest confidence.

First and foremost is the debacle of British production to date. Evidence piles up that the Labor government in Britain has accumulated more persons on the public payroll of its bureaucracy in proportion to population than any democracy has ever had in peace time. The nationalization or government-ownership program in Britain has shattered the production of coal and the American people are about to be taxed to pay the deficit in coal production.

The foreign-aid program, presumably a business matter and proper business methods should be used to carry it out. The American free-enterprise system is admittedly the best method to get high productivity and yet the Harriman committee is willing to acquiesce in methods which it knows in its heart will not get the desired productivity. It is safe to say the Republican Party in Congress which represents common-sense conservatism will not agree to a scheme which ties the hands of the American government and denies it a voice in what methods shall be used in applying the money or goods sent abroad. This would be unprecedented. Of course, but the appropriation of from $12 billions to $17 billions of American taxpayers' money in time of peace is also unprecedented. Extraordinary cries call for extraordinary measures. (Reproduction rights reserved)

MAIDSTONE TO LITTLESTONE, ENGLAND.

A Hole 35 Miles Long

The longest hole ever played at golf was one measuring 35 miles in actual play, the top being in Linton Park, near Maidstone, and the putting green at Littlestone on Sea, England. This remarkable golf match took place as a result of a wager to determine the number of strokes in such a long hole.

The start was made in the early morning from the north gate of Linton Park. At the 65th shot the River Beult was reached, at 11:25 Mr. Oyley reached Horsfield Bridge, the 915th stroke. The players made Brensett. The main sewer draining Romney Marsh had to be crossed, and the 1,000th stroke bounced off a sheep. A masher shot landed the players on the first green of the celebrated links at Littlestone, a putt rested within four feet of the hole, and with the 1,087th stroke Oyley holed out at 11:38 on the third day.

Education Week Observed in Kingston Schools

Kingston schools are participating in the observance of American Education Week, which currently is being observed, and the principals and teachers of the school extend an invitation to parents to visit the schools and become acquainted.

The general theme of Education Week is "The Schools Are Yours—Visit Them." The purpose of the observance is to focus attention on schools through visitation and interpretation.

Superintendent of Schools A. J. Laidlaw accompanied The Freeman photographer on a tour of the schools and the result of their trip is a pictorial review of some of the activities of our school system. The high school, intermediate school, night school and grade schools were visited and a pictorial glance into the school-rooms will be presented in The Freeman this week.

Today we present the night school.

The adult education program has become an important function of the Kingston Public Schools. Its acceptance by the public is evidenced by its growth in the last few years. With over 500 people enrolled and a staff of 25 teachers, it aims to meet the educational, cultural and leisure time activity needs of this area.

In the upper left hand picture is the metalcraft class which was started this fall in response to a request by interested persons. Mr. Gilkey is the instructor of this group. These people are very enthusiastic over their work and several trays, bud vases and other objects have already been completed.

The Americanization class is shown in the upper right picture. Through its Americanization class the adult education program aims to meet the needs of our foreign-born people. Some want to learn to read, write and speak English; others are eager to become American citizens and must learn something about our history. The teacher in charge of this work is Miss Sara Israel.

Artists at work are pictured in the reproduction in the lower left position. In the two years since its organization the art class has more than doubled its registration. Two teachers, Mrs. Odell and Mr. Foster, are busy all evening helping students to find relaxation through painting and sketching. Students have remarked that they can hardly wait until the next session rolls around.

The above lower right picture shows a corner of our machine shop. The men in this group are all mechanically inclined. Some are preparing for entrance into industry, others are already employed in local machine shops and are eager to become more proficient workers. Mr. Kelley is the instructor here.

Train of Thought
The man who thinks "What's the use?" Is not the engine. But the caboose.
—Mrs. H. B. Shearer

Dogs, a fancier of them points out, nowadays serve as hunters, retrievers, guards, companions, riders in war, herders of livestock, police aides, guides, draft animals, entertainers in sports and shows, scavengers, fur bearers and, in case of necessity, as food.

Diplomacy has been defined as the art of letting the other fellow have your own way.

Mother—"That young man certainly stays late. Doesn't he know how to say goodnight?"
Daughter—Does he!

One swallow may not mean a summer, but it can lead to a fall.

Hard-boiled Teacher—Is this composition original?

Student—Yes, but you may find some of the words in the dictionary.

Wife—Have a look at the cake I decorated for my birthday party. Don't you think my sense of design is wonderful?

Husband (counting the candles)—Yes, but your arithmetic is terrible.

Crystal Gazer—I see—I see a buried treasure.

Client—Yes—never mind that. It's probably my husband's first wife. I know all about her.

Friend (to Jones putting up arch in garden)—What on earth are you putting up that thing for?

Jones—Oh, just a whim of the wife's.

Friend—Why didn't you talk her out of it?

Jones—You don't know my wife. She has a whim of iron.

Teacher—How many fingers have you?

Bobbie—Ten.

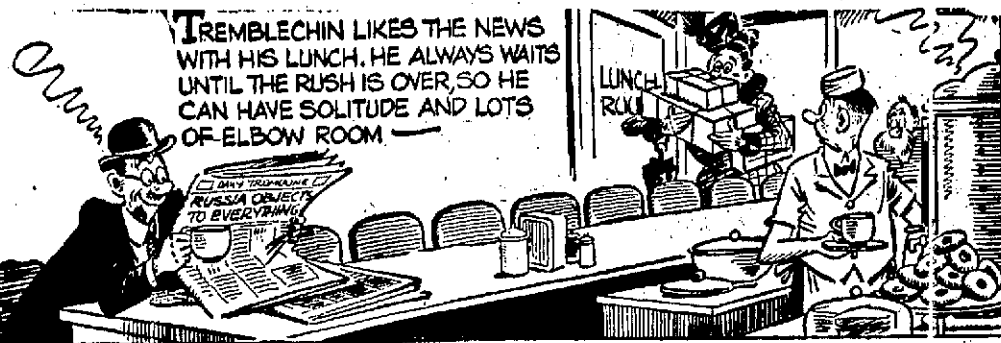

Teacher—Well, if four were missing, what would you have then?

Bobbie—No music lessons.

the war is over. Second Doughboy—Then what? First Doughboy—I'm going to move next door to him and buy me a bugle. Every night when he tries to go to sleep I'm going to start blowin'!

Sunday School Teacher—Now, Johnny, what do you think a land flowing with milk and honey would be like? Johnny—Sticky.

Success comes high—few are willing to pay the price.

Landlord—What's the complaint? Tenant—The bathroom faucet won't run; would you mind having the hole in the roof shifted over the tub?

He—Do you mind if I snap off the light? I freckle easily.

Husband—I passed Harris in the street yesterday, and he refused to recognize me. Thinks I'm not his equal, I guess.

Wife—Well, you certainly are his equal! He's nothing but a bluffing, brainless, conceited idiot!

It gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money, and you'll find it wonderful for real relief. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. (You can use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle.

Castle Point Group Visits Woodstock With Mr. Heermann

Members of the art group, one of the patients' interest groups at Castle Point Veterans Hospital, were guests Wednesday at the homes of several artists in Woodstock. William Hamilton, Arlene Laetona, Henry K. Garner and Arthur Hartigan, driven in a Red Cross Motor Corps car of Peckskill by Sarah D. Moore, made the trip and were conducted through the village by Norbert Heermann.

The group stopped for Sophie Miller at her home on Broadway in this city and were given cigarettes from Eastern Star Lodge. The art group was originated through the efforts of Sophie Miller and Mr. Heermann with a group of artists from Woodstock.

The veterans were entertained at the Heermann home where they met Mrs. Heermann (Elizabeth Alexander, author of stories for McCall's, Saturday Evening Post and Ladies Home Journal), and saw the home and grounds which is being photographed for a national Home and Garden magazine. They also visited Mr. Heermann's private studio where they saw several actual portraits in the process of being completed.

Conrad Cramer, painter of still life and photographer, and his wife, F. Ballin Cramer, whose oil paintings have been shown in foremost galleries of the country, were the next hosts. The group also visited John Striebel, cartoonist for the Dixie Dugan comic strip, who drew a sketch of Sophie Miller which was taken back to Castle Point for Sam Goldy, a veteran who contracted tuberculosis during his several years imprisonment in a Japanese concentration camp.

The veterans visited Millie Smith's new gallery where they saw paintings, lithographs and etchings by Mari Arndt, Clarence Bolton, Elizabeth Bush, Louise Hagon, Eugene McEvoy, Clarence J. McCarthy, John McClellan, William H. MacReady, Ivan Summers, R. W. Woiceske and C. W. Woodruff.

From there they went to the studio and home of Karl Hottel, symbolic artist, whose painting won a Guggenheim $1,000 award. He also showed the group some mobiles, art with glass wire and rope done by Herman Cherry.

The group also visited the Art Students League buildings. The trip was one of the features of entertainment and inspiration furnished the Castle Point patients interested in art by the Woodstock artists under the supervision of Mr. Heermann.

Port Ewen, Nov. 10—The wedding of Miss Wilma Ruth Schweigel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schweigel, to Paul C. Makepeace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Makepeace, Plessis, took place Sunday at 4 p. m. in the Methodist Church. The Rev. Fred Stine, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Luther King, Metropolitan Duane, New York city, performed the double ring ceremony.

Aunt of the bride, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, was organist, and her cousin, Miss Shirley Fowler, sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." The church was decorated with chrysanthemums.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white slipper satin gown fashioned with net yoke, fitted bodice, and long pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil was attached to a pearl beaded Dutch cap and she carried white pompons on a prayer book.

Miss Elizabeth Jane Schweigel, her sister, as maid of honor, wore an aqua brocaded satin gown with heart shaped net hat and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Makepeace was best man for his son. Ushers were Frederick Schweigel, Leonia, N. J., and Frederick Spinnenweller of Kingston, cousins of the bride.

A reception for the bridal party and immediate families was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Makepeace left for a wedding trip to Goose Bay on the St. Lawrence river. For traveling the bride selected a brown ensemble with gold accessories. They will live in Plessis.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post
(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

IMPORTANCE OF SHOWERS
A reader asks: "What can one do about refusing invitations to showers given for young women who are almost strangers to me?"

How far can I go without getting myself in wrong in this town? I've lived here several years and find myself now being invited to all sorts of parties where one is supposed to bring a present for someone—and invariably the someone is a person I hardly know. I don't mean to be disagreeable but the financial drain has been sufficiently serious to require doing this or that in order to keep in line."

Meeting people and encouraging the friendship of those you meet and like are requirements for rounding out a full life. Constant refusal to accept invitations soon will set you apart and you may find yourself a very lonely person. Since showers are popular at the moment in your town, why not select some inexpensive but useful gift—mixing bowls, cookbook, measuring spoons or apron—so you can go with a light heart!

His Personal Choice
Dear Mrs. Post: As you see from our letterhead, we are an old and well-known firm of jewelers, silversmiths and stationers. In our long experience we never have encountered this problem: A customer does not like the conventional wording for engraved invitations intended for all general purposes. That is, instead of having them:

Mr. Henry Bridglight requests the pleasure of Mr. John Barrington's company at, etc.

he prefers the wording changed to "requests the pleasure of the company of" and then to be followed by Mr. John Barrington. Will you give us your opinion?

Answer: If this is what Mr. Bridglight likes, there is no reason why he should not have this wording, but the form printed is the conventional one.

Divorcee Keeps Rings
Dear Mrs. Post: After divorce, is an ex-wife supposed to return her wedding ring and engagement ring to her ex-husband?

Answer: No, never.

Mrs. Post has written a leaflet entitled, "Names and Signatures (Widow and Divorcee)." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

Coterie Hears Paper; Has Demonstration on Flowers

Coterie met with Mrs. Arthur H. Russell, Brewster street Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Otto L. Schreiber spoke of floral designs and flowers. Her daughter, Miss Grace Schreiber, of the Kingston House of Flowers demonstrated floral designs and especially the making of Christmas trimmings. She presented each member with a corsage.

In the paper for the day, Mrs. Schreiber said that flowers like music were universal and an international language. She spoke of the everyday use of flowers in conversation such as "fresh as a daisy," told of the origin of many flowers most of which have come from foreign lands, flower legends, customs on days such as May Day, St. Valentine's Day and Christmas and the use of flowers in religion.

In the days of Egypt, Greece and Rome, flowers were worn by the men in the festivals. Mrs. Schreiber spoke of the use of a wreath by Caesar to cover his baldness and also spoke of Christian use of flowers in the services. She said that flowers are mentioned 650 times in the Bible and that there are 20,000 varieties of orchids.

Following the meeting refreshments were served with Miss Gladys Secore presiding, assisting the hostess by pouring.

The club will meet again this Saturday with Maj. Helena Clearwater at her home on St. James street. The paper, "Hidden Beauty," will be given by Mrs. Helen Terwilliger.

U.S. Military Promulgates Property Recovery Decree

Berlin, Nov. 10 (AP)—The U. S. military government promulgated a property recovery decree today, over the objections of three German states in the American zone, a restriction law enabling thousands of persons to recover property which was wrested from them during the Hitler regime.

U. S. officials said they expected between 20,000 and 30,000 to make claims in the zone to a value of from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 Reichsmarks. (The Reichsmark was worth 40 cents at pre-war rates, and now is worth 10 cents at the military rate.)

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the U. S. military governor, issued the military decree after the ministers president of Bavaria, Bremen and Württemberg-Baden, rejected a draft law presented to them for approval Saturday. They said they agreed "in principle" with the measure provides for protection of persons who purchased confiscated property in good faith. However, outside these exceptions, any provision which "would defeat restitution shall be disregarded," the law states.

North Atlantic League Votes Shorter Schedule for '48 Season

Fate of Kingston Franchise Still Undecided by Dodgers

The Brooklyn Dodgers are re-examining their franchise in the Class D North Atlantic Baseball League, it was disclosed at the league meeting in Mahanoy City, Pa., yesterday, but whether it will operate in Kingston in 1948 is a question not yet answered by the Dodger organization.

Representatives of all eight clubs voted in favor of a shorter schedule in 1948, with the season opening on May 1, and decided to resume the annual All-Star game. The all-star game was cancelled last season because of a tremendous backlog of postponed games created by inclement weather in the early part of the schedule.

All Teams Represented
Teams represented at Sunday's meeting were Stroudsburg, Mahanoy City, Canaan, and Nazareth, Pa.; Kingston, Peaskill, and Nyack, N. Y.; and Bloomingdale, N. J.

Valentine Smith, president of the Nazareth Tigers, was elected league vice-president, succeeding Louis Basille, former owner of the Peaskill club, who was named an honorary vice-president. Ernest C. "Duke" Landgraf, president of the league, announced applications for 1948 franchises from Hazleton, Shamokin and Lansford, Pa. The league directors voted to defer action on the applications until the February meeting.

Kingston Waits
Meanwhile, Clarence S. Rowland, president of the Kingston Dodgers, announced that the local group is still waiting to hear from Branch Rickey Jr. regarding the status of the local franchise in the Dodger organization.

Following the meeting held in the Stuyvesant Hotel several weeks ago, Mr. Rowland contacted the junior Rickey via telephone and reported the sentiments ex-

Major Leagues' Annual Draft List Includes 8,000 Players

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 10 (AP)—Major league baseball unties the grab bag today and reaches into the sack for the top talent of the minors at the annual draft meeting supervised by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Comparatively few of the 8,000 "bushers" on the eligible list are expected to get a beckoning finger from the big loppers in the scramble for fancy fiddlers, heavy hitters and hot hurriers.

Last year only 30 were added to the major league rosters through the draft, 11 clubs paying $184,000 for the "ivory." Players claimed from triple-A clubs carry a $10,000 price tag, double-A $7,500; Class A a $6,000, Class B $5,000, Class C $2,500 and Class D $2,000. Payments must be made within 10 days.

Browns First Choice
Last-placers in the 1947 pennant chase got first pick, with the St. Louis Browns leading off and the Philadelphia Phillies second, and then the choicest alternate upward through the standings. As soon as a club reaches the player limit of 40 it loses its right to make further selections, and players taken in the draft may not be assigned to a minor league club until after next April 1. The selecting club assumes all responsibility for the player's physical condition and for his reporting for duty. A club may not cancel a selection after making it.

Among the available talent are scores of former major league players who have faded back to the minors, but some had interesting records last season which may earn them another shot under the big top.

Max West on Top
They include Max West, former Cincinnati and Boston Brave outfielder who slammed 43 home runs to lead the Pacific Coast League in circuit drives and runs batted in, and Ed Heusser, the veteran Cincinnati hurler who won 19 and lost three for Montreal after being shipped there by the Dodgers.

Brooklyn, last to get a chance to pick a player, may lose another when party is breaking up—serve a last round of Dry Uta Club Pliner Lager of XXX Cream Ale. Your guests will go away happy and you'll be voted a perfect host and hostess.

Bagatelles

There is a peculiar form of ideology being championed in certain bowling quarters in the city. . . . It goes something like this: It is a cardinal bowling sin to aspire to bowl in a scratch league made up of the top trundlers of the city. . . . The onus of being a 190 average bowler is reprehensible. If you happen to be blessed with sufficient inherent skill to become a 190 average bowler you are suddenly afflicted with a social stigma. . . . The oracles who fumble in futility trying to achieve the coveted 190 average, misleading as it sometimes can be, have been selling themselves the ridiculous theory that once you become a 190 kegler you stop talking to everybody else in the tepin game. . . . Now, we have had the pleasure of rolling with and against a fair share of 190 keggers in the past 10 years and strangely enough, we generally found the majority of them pleasant, friendly, articulate and willing to break bread and share a couple of brews with us. . . . Naturally, there have been jerques here and there but it must be assumed that the proportion is about the same in the ranks below 190.

Always Room for One More

Jealousy is a vicious disease. It consumes the individual and warps his perspective whether it be in sports or any other walk of life. If we are to subscribe to the phony reasoning that it is a crime to aspire to improve oneself, then the whole scheme of life must be wrong. If a bowler has to risk an alleged social stigma because of an instinctive desire to improve his game, then it would be a happier solution to just close the doors on the thousands of tepin establishments throughout the country. . . . Methinks this is a phony theory. . . . It is tantamount to asking the Dodgers and Yankees to quit taking pennants so seriously and give the Phils and Browns a chance. . . . People who find escape in that sort of self disillusionment always overlook the vital factor of human equation. . . . There are millions of bowlers in the game today who never hit a 190 average simply because they are not endowed with the mechanical skill. . . . There are countless others who could set up housekeeping on a battery of alleys, stay there for the remainder of their days on earth and still fall short of a 190 average. . . . But the vast majority of these folks seem to be satisfied with their lot. . . . They know that there is always room at the top whether it be bowling, baseball, tidily winks or Chinese checkers. . . . And most of the people appreciate the significance of a genuine 190 average and respect the bowler who can do it.

We respect the 190 bowler because to us he is a personification of the goal many aspire to but not all achieve. Our hats off to the Ferraros, Kelders, Sampsons, Spauldings, Jices and others. . . . They are pretty substantial fellows on and off the alleys. . . . We never found it too hard to get into a conversation with these knights of the polished lanes. . . . Could it be that these gentlemen have something the prophets seek but have not yet found? . . .

Flotsam and Jetsam

Here are some of the important American Bowling Congress dates: Nov. 20, 1947—Deadline for captains' confirmation of A.B.C. tournament selections.
Dec. 1, 1947—Captains will receive entry blanks.
Jan. 6, 1948—Teams with reservations must mail entry blanks and fees.
March 23, 1948—A.B.C. tournament opens at State Fair Coliseum, Detroit.
April 10, 1948—Annual A.B.C. convention of delegates at Fort Shelby Hotel.

Splits and Misses

Bob Hanley, blasting at a 185 clip for Town Cats in the Major League, was rendered hors de combat by a harmless radio, believe it or not. . . . He cut his bowling hand while moving the noise box. . . . At least that's the story he's telling his cronies. . . . From here Ralph Mayone shaped up as a definite bowling prospect for the future. . . . Whatever happened to Eddie Sohn, one of the better junior pin spunkers? . . . Bo Gill, Newburgh sports editor forced a bowling league in the Hilly City to make a public apology for submitting phony scores for publication. . . . Bo, who has been extremely generous with his bowling space this season, got quick action when he threatened to bring the matter to the attention of American Bowling Congress officials. . . . Same thing happened to us several years ago, when a group of "the kids" brought in a report of a 3100 series all-legs rolled Catwalk. . . . In those days 3100 series were not commonplace and the news created quite a commotion among the tepin citizenry. . . . Later developments proved that the score had been concocted on a menu in a midtown bistro. . . . "Chuck" Mauro, who operates a tavern in East Kingston, and Tommy DeCicco, connoisseur of terrific steaks at his North street tavern, are readying for another "amur" season among the Catwalk. . . . Kingston Point and East Kingston teams. . . . Amur is that quaint Italian game which combines leather lungs with slight-of-hand and sounds like murder. . . . More on this delicate art later.

Browns Can Clinch American Football Title Next Week

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Cleveland Browns, defending All-America Conference Champions, have an opportunity next Sunday to become the first team in either their own circuit or the rival National Football League to nail down a 1947 title.

Coach Paul Brown's high-scoring eleven has won nine out of ten starts and a victory over the runner-up San Francisco 49ers next Sunday will enable the Browns to clinch the current western division flag battle.

The Browns drew a step closer to the crown yesterday by nosing out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 13-12, while the 49ers dropped a 24-16 decision to the New York Yankees.

Yanks Lead in East
At New York, the 49ers appeared on their way to their first win over the Yankees when with less than eight minutes remaining, they held a 16-14 lead.

However, Harvey Johnson booted a 19-yard field goal to put the Yanks ahead, 17-16, and a few plays later Jack Russell blocked a punt which Bruce Alford recovered and lugged home.

The win enabled the Yanks to maintain their one game Eastern Half margin over the runner-up Buffalo Bills. The Bills handed the visiting Los Angeles Rams their first whitewash in two years, 25-0.

Cards Lead National
Meanwhile, in the National League, the Chicago Cardinals retained their one game Western Division lead and the Pittsburgh Steelers kept a half game in front of the Philadelphia Eagles in the east.

The Cardinals turned back the Detroit Lions, 17-7, while the runner-up Chicago Bears clipped the Green Bay Packers, 20-17.

Pittsburgh withstood a heavy last-half aerial attack by Sammy Baugh to down the Washington Redskins, 21-14, while the second place Eagles romped to a 41-24 victory over the hapless New York Giants.

In the remaining game, the Boston Yanks came from behind and toppled the Los Angeles Rams, 27-16, on the West Coast.

Female Ace Hits 247, 208 and 208 In Mixed Wheel

The city's tepin queen—Rose Schatzel—hits them in any league as she proved last night when she toppled a huge 663 to set a pair of individual records in the Central Mixed League.

With a string of 247, 208, 208, Mrs. Schatzel achieved a new high single for women and new high series for the league, men and women.

Mrs. Schatzel previously held the record in the triple department for women with 636. Johnny Ferraro's 625 formerly topped the entire circuit.

It is believed likely that Rose's 663 blast is heavy enough to qualify her for a place in the first ten this season in the W.B.C. honor roll.

Other Good Scores

The women generally shot good scores in the Sunday night circuit. Evelyn Francis rolled 200-534; Doris Wolff had 209-539; Margie Jansen 530; Evelyn Moore 516.

Johnny Ferraro anchored Capital Cleaners with 606 on 181, 205 and 220.

1947 Notre Dame Football Squad Ranks Among Greatest in History

Poughkeepsie - Kingston Grid Game Is Out for 1947

The Kingston High-Poughkeepsie football game will not be played this season, it became evident today.

Following cancellation of Saturday's scheduled contest because of inclement weather, athletic officials of the two schools were unable to agree on a new date.

Coach Sam Kallouch, of Poughkeepsie, suggested the game be played today, but this proposal was rejected by Coach Bill Burke of Kingston. Mr. Burke refused on the grounds that if the game were played today, the Maroon would have to lay off Tuesday and then have only three days in which to prepare for the crucial Port Jervis test next Saturday.

Port Game Important
In Kingston's book, the Port Jervis DUSO fracas has a higher priority than the Poughkeepsie game. The Kingston-Port game will decide the DUSO title unless there is another tie.

Kingston offered November 22 as a substitute date, but Coach Kallouch turned it down, pointing out that last Saturday's contest was to have been the last of the season for Poughkeepsie. He said he did not think it desirable to keep the Blues in training two extra weeks.

So, there won't be any Kingston-Poughkeepsie football game this season.

Stars Win Over Middletown and Poughkeepsie Aces

The Kingston Stars began to approach mid-season form over the week-end and racked up two impressive victories over Middletown and Poughkeepsie, compiling a hefty 2666 series against the Bridge City females and 2508 against the Middies.

Powered by Margie Jansen's 220 single, the Stars achieved a 625 sole against Poughkeepsie. The margins of victory were 62 pins over Middletown and 306 over Poughkeepsie.

Rose Schatzel rolled 575 against Poughkeepsie and 544 against Middletown. Evelyn Moore posted 559 and 517. Schatzel's high games were 201, 202, and 200, while Moore had 200 and 203. Margie Jansen finished with 211 against Middletown and 220 against Poughkeepsie.

Berrian Leads Middies
Kay Berrian, Middletown's ace female trundler, posted 214-515 to lead the Middies, while Gladys Masterson had 211-595. Pat Hegnauer rolled 202-533 to lead the Bridge City contingent.

The Irish are not alone in the all-conquering class. They are joined by Michigan, generally regarded as the No. 2 team of the nation, Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech, Penn State and Utah among the major colleges. All have perfect slates.

Then there's U.S.C. and Kansas who have been tied but not beaten. And right up there alongside are such strong once-beaten eleven as Texas, California, Wisconsin, Mississippi, State William and Mary, Rutgers and Maryland.

The all-victorious list may get a pruning next week as in addition to the Michigan-Wisconsin and Notre Dame-Northwestern games, Penn engaged still-to-be-reckoned Army, Penn State tangles with over-dagger Navy, Georgia Tech takes on resurgent Alabama and S.M.U. tackles Arkansas.

Bowling Scores

Kingston's Hudson Valley League representatives dropped seven out of nine games in weekend competition, highlighted by Hotel Ulster's two-game loss to the Middletown Lusterberg Nasts.

Hykes Shoes lost a pair to Newburgh Taxis, while Van Kleef's suffered a three-game setback in Ellenville.

High scores flourished with Charlie Manfro's 653 blast against the Taxis setting the pace. Manfro knocked off a string of 223, 224 and 215. Larry Weishaup accounted for 631 with 213, 202 and 216.

The Taxis had three 600 triples led by Eddie Gordon's 615. Bill Baker knocked off 614 and Ken Rhodes 614. Rhodes shot 224, Gordon 224 and Baker 234, 201. Walt Pulver Taxi anchor finished with 238 and "Tarz" Spada of the Hykes rolled 222.

The match featured four 1000 sets, Hykes posting 1015 and 1002 with a 2084 triple, while the winners accounted for 1006 and 1009 and 2971.

Ferraro Hits 653

Despite Johnny's Ferraro 653 blast with 242 single, the Hotel Ulsters continued in their slump by losing a pair to the Lusterberg Nasts. Po Biamonte rolled 604, with 220 and 203 for Lusterberg.

Gambino-Horn

Still Deadlocked

For Scoring Lead

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Lucien (Lu) Gambino of Maryland and Darwin Horn of Pepperdine scored three touchdowns apiece last Saturday to continue knotted today for the nation's collegiate football scoring lead with 84 points.

Gambino gambled against Duquesne for his scores in Maryland's 32-0 win, while Horn got his triple in a 47-0 rout of California Poly. Both have scored 14 touchdowns—Horn in six games and Gambino in seven.

Gambino surpassed the 72 figure of last year which led the Southern Conference and which was registered by Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice of North Carolina.

Roy Preston of undefeated Missouri Valley, Marshall, Mo., was the only other player above the 60-point mark, with 81 compiled on ten TD's and 21 conversions.

Montana Cowboy Wins

World's Championship

San Francisco, Nov. 10 (AP)—Bud Linderman of Red Lodge, Mont., late last night was declared the world all-around cowboy champion at the conclusion of the Grand National Livestock Exposition—the final show of the 1947 International Rodeo Association Circuit.

The little Montanan's buddy, Wag Blessing of Burbank, Calif., who was injured in New York rodeo and only participated occasionally in San Francisco events, was runner-up.

Linderman was awarded $5,000 in cash prizes and ornately decorated silver mounted saddles and other paraphernalia valued at about $2,000.

Public Intoxication

Jennie Robinson, 56, of 137 Abel street, pleaded guilty today to a charge of public intoxication, and was sentenced to pay a $10 fine or spend 10 days in jail by Judge Cahill in city court.

Five-Inch Rainfall and both reservoirs are expected to gain during the rest of the week.

The Gilboa reservoir had reached a low of slightly more than two billions of gallons just before the rains of Friday and Saturday and the Ashokan was more than 50 billions of gallons under normal supply.

Rose to 12.15 Feet

A geological survey station at Cold Brook reported that the Esopus had reached a crest of 12.15 feet during the heavy rains of Saturday and that floods were considered imminent at a crest of 12.7 feet.

The water dropped quickly below this high level, however, and was reported at about five feet today.

Water was running high in the Sawkill also and the Cape of the Woodstock Country Club was reported flooded after heavy rains of Saturday.

Superintendent Byrne reported a rainfall in the Cooper Lake area at 43 inches Friday and 3.49 inches Saturday. The latter was higher than that for the whole month of October.

The flow from Mink Hollow became roily and was shut off Saturday. It is expected to be turned on during the week and the reservoir then is expected to gain much of the supply lost in the October of 1946.

The heavy rainfall of Saturday was from 8 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., and in that time nearly three and a half inches fell in the Cooper Lake area.

Marshall Asks

Germany, the secretary said, is "the unmistakable imprint of an alien hand."

Consequently, Marshall said, the geographic scope of the recovery program contemplated by this country "is limited to those nations which are free to act in accordance with their national traditions and their own estimates of their national interests."

Omits Estimate

Marshall omitted in his request for emergency aid any estimate of the cost of the program. The British-American occupation zone in Western Germany, plus the zones in Japan and Korea. Since this is an army department matter, presumably any recommendations must come from Secretary of Defense Forrestal or Secretary of the Army Royal.

The additional occupation cost is expected to run about $400,000,000.

Of the $597,000,000 for emergency assistance, Marshall said France needs $328,000,000 Italy $227,000,000 and Austria $42,000,000 to carry them through March 1948.

By then, the secretary said, it is hoped Congress will have decided on the broad, long range recovery plan bearing Marshall's name. This will be outlined in detail later, probably after Congress reconvenes November 17.

Interim aid, Marshall said, would be concentrated largely on food, fuel, fertilizer, fibers, seeds and medical supplies.

The program can be handled by existing government agencies but should be carried out under definite agreements with each of the nations involved, Marshall said.

Will Negotiate Pact

On the long range program, he said, it is contemplated that a definite pact will be negotiated with each participating country.

The secretary made it evident the administration regards the economic situation in non-Communist Italy as the most serious in Western Europe.

Italy's financial situation," he said, "is even more serious than that of Austria or France."

The secretary's discussion of the nature and scope of the longer program, represented the first official administration comments on the views of 16 Western European countries.

These are the ones which met in Paris and figured that over the next four years they would need $22,440,000,000 in outside help, mostly from the United States.

Marshall left it strictly up to Congress to determine how the long-term program should be administered. Some sentiment has developed in Congress for a separate agency outside the state department.

But he did give this outline of how he thought the program should work:

"As a general principle, aid should take the form of grants or loans, depending in each case upon the capacity of the particular country to repay and the effect which accumulation of additional external debt would have upon sustained recovery. The precise determination in each case should be made by the administrative agency with the advice of the Department of State and the National Advisory Council.

"In practice, it is felt that, where need is clearly demonstrated and where repayment cannot reasonably be expected, imports of supplies which are quickly consumed, such as food, fertilizer and fuel, or indispensable items of capital equipment for immediate replacement and repair, and of essential raw materials, should be financed by means of grants.

"Should Make Loans

"Loans should be made to cover imports of capital equipment and raw materials which will directly produce the means of repayment and where such repayment can reasonably be expected.

"At the same time every encouragement should be given to early initiation of private financing so as to eliminate as far as possible, the necessity for direct assistance from the United States Government.

Use should also be made of the resources of the International Bank whenever, in the opinion of the bank, the necessary and appropriate conditions for loans can be met.

Economic effects of the aid program, Marshall said, will be felt far beyond the boundaries of the 16 nations involved. In a sense, he said, it is a world recovery program. He made this point:

"It does not have to tell you that this foreign economic program of the United States seeks no special advantage and pursues no sinister purpose. It is a program of construction, production and recovery. It menaces no one.

"It is designed specifically to bring to an end in the shortest possible time the dependence of these countries for aid from the United States. We wish to see them self-supporting."

Emergency Measure

The short-range program, Marshall said, is not a recovery plan but an emergency measure. He urged "immediate and urgent construction."
